STORIE PER TUTTI
Good practice description	"Storie per tutti" (stories for all) is a project of accessible read alouds for children. The believe is that access to culture and art in all its forms is a right of all and that they should be designed taking into account different abilities. Accessibility should not be an accessory, an added value, but should be an inseparable and indispensable part of educational and cultural planning. In this way, Storie per Tutti wants to offer children an inclusive opportunity, making the space/time of storytelling a pleasant moment that can be enjoyed by everyone, even those who do not have access to books and reading in a conventional way. To this end, the communication tools are diversified to make reading accessible and engaging with the help of proven strategies. Therefore, this project wants to be a way to give an answer to the lack of accessibility to read aloud and wants to promote accessibility as a foundation of civilization and citizenship. In addition, it wants to promote a vision of the social role of the disabled person as an active citizen and encourage their participation in the daily life of the community.
